He's loved her most of his life. But he's not the only one who wants her... Troy Thomsen, the only Boston native in the Order, has survived an abusive foster home and the death of his younger brother before becoming a New Breed. A loner, Troy dreams of the day he can tell feisty Evelyn O'Donnell how he feels about her. But even though they've lived in Southie all their lives, their worlds could not be further apart. Evelyn is human. Raised in an ideal Irish Catholic home, Evy is studying to be a youth counselor unaware she's being watched. Compelled by the protective instinct, Troy is powerless to stay away from Evy, until his attention leads a group of rogues straight to her. As the war continues to rage around them, Troy vigilantly tracks her as Wolf. Even if he finds her, he knows he has no right to her. But once their worlds collide, there's no going back. In the middle of a war filled with hatred and prejudice Troy and Evy must find a place where they belong.
